Fun Facts

March 14, or 3/14, is the perfect time to honor the essential mathematical constant, whose first digits are 3.14. Pi, or π , is the ratio of a circle's circumference to its diameter. Because it is irrational, it can't be written as a fraction. Instead, it is an infinitely long, nonrepeating number.

National Consumer Protection Week 1-7 March 2020

Every year, National Consumer Protection Week (NCPW) encourages people and businesses to learn more about avoiding scams and understanding consumer rights. NCPW highlights free resources from government agencies and consumer organizations to help people make smarter buying decisions and spot rip offs.
